Rev. 10/3/08

In the event you are hired and become an employee of Southeast Milk, Inc., or Sunshine State Dairy Farms, LLC., the Fair Credit Reporting Act (FCRA) requires you receive a summary of FCRA consumer rights as issued by the Federal Trade Commission.

A Summary Of Your Rights Under the Fair Credit Reporting Act (FCRA)

The federal Fair Credit Reporting Act (“FCRA”) is designed to promote accuracy, fairness, and privacy of information used in the process of granting credit by consumer reporting agencies (“CRA”). This information is supplied by public record sources, credit grantors, and others to the CRAs. The CRAs organize and store the information for distribution to credit grantors, employers, and insurers who are making credit, employment and insurance decisions about you. The FCRA gives suppliers and users of credit information, and CRAs, specific responsibilities in connection with their respective roles in the credit reporting and granting process. The FCRA also gives you specific rights in dealing with these entities, as outlined below. You can find the complete text of the FCRA, 15 U.S.C. 1681 et seq., as amended, at the Federal Trade Commission’s web site (<http://www.ftc.gov>). You may have additional rights under state law. You may contact state or local consumer protection agency or a state attorney general to learn those rights.

1. You must be told if information in your file was a factor considered by a third party who took unfavorable actions toward you. Anyone who uses information from a CRA to take action against you—such as denying an application for credit, insurance, or employment—must tell you, and give you the name, address and phone number of the CRA that provided the consumer report. Keep in mind that the third party, not the CRA, took the unfavorable action toward you and that the CRA will not be able to provide you with the reason for the unfavorable action.
2. You can find out what is in your file. Upon your request, a CRA must give you the information in your file, and a list of everyone who has recently requested it. However, you are not entitled to any information concerning “risk scores”, or other economic predictors in your file. There is no charge for the file if a person has taken action against you because of information supplied by the CRA, if you request the report in within sixty (60) days of receiving notification that the information in your file was used by a third party unfavorable. You are also entitled to one free repost every twelve months upon request if you certify that: (1) you are employed and plan to seek employment within 60 days; (2) you are on welfare; or (3) your report is inaccurate due to fraud. Otherwise, a CRA may charge you up to eight dollars ($8.00) for the extra copy of the report.
3. You can dispute inaccurate information with the CRA. If you tell a CRA that you file contains inaccurate information, the CRA must reinvestigate the items (usually within thirty (30) days) by presenting to its information source all relevant evidence and report its findings to the CRA. (The source also must advise national CRAs, to which it has provided the data, of any error.) The CRA must normally include a summary of your statement in future reports. If an item is deleted or a dispute statement if filed, you may ask that anyone who has recently received you report be notified of the change.
4. Inaccurate information must be corrected or deleted. A CRA must remove or correct inaccurate or unverified information from its file, usually within thirty (30) days after you dispute it. However, the CRA is not required to remove accurate data from your files unless it is outdated (as described below), or cannot be verified. If your dispute results in any change to your report, the CRA cannot reinsert into your file a disputed item unless the information source verifies its accuracy and completeness. In addition, the CRA must give you a written notice telling you that it has reinserted the item. The notice must include the name address and phone number of the information source.

Fair Credit Reporting

5. Your can dispute inaccurate information with source of the information. If you tell anyone—such as a creditor who reports to the CRA—that you depute an item, they may not then report the information to a CRA without including a notice of your dispute. In addition, once you have notified the source of the error in writing, they may not continue to report it if it is in fact an error.
6. Outdated information may not be reported. In most cases, a CRA may not report negative information that is more than seven (7) years old; ten (10) years for bankruptcies.
7. Access to your file is limited. A CRA may provide information about you only to people with a need recognized by the FCRA, usually to consider an application you have submitted with a creditor, insurer, employer, landlord, or other business, or to consider you for an unsolicited offer of credit.
8. Your consent is required for reports that are provided to employers or reports that contain medical information. A CRA may not give out information about you to your employer, or prospective employer, without your written consent. A CRA may not report medical information about you to creditors, insurers, or employers without your permission.
9. You may choose to exclude your name from CRA lists for unsolicited credit and insurance offers. Creditors and insurers may use file information as the basis for sending you unsolicited offers of credit or insurance. Such offers must include a toll-free phone number for you to call if you want your name and address removed from future lists. If you call, you must be kept off the lists for two years. If you request and complete the CRA form provided for this purpose, you can have your name and address removed indefinitely.
10. You may seek damages from violators. If a CRA, a user or (in some cases) a provider of CRA data, violates the FCRA, creditors and others not listed, please contact any of the below listed entities.
